Takeaways

Careful Listening
Careful listening is a prerequisite for all support responses and techniques. It involves observing and responding to what is being communicated.Responding verbally to communicate listening is the most important part of support and is even more important because you lack information when doing support by telephone or email. Good listening is demonstrated by:

- Showing interest through tone of voice.
- Asking appropriate questions about what is being discussed.
- Saying things like “Yes” or “I hear what you’re saying” to convey interest.
- Offering general leads that encourage a person to continue, such as “What happened next?” or “What else?”
- Staying with the present point without jumping ahead to the next topic.
- Listening for both the facts and feelings.

Verbal Cues

• Tone of Voice
• Hesitancy or Rapid Pacing
• Spacing of Words or Sighs
• Silence

Important to remember your own verbal cues too!
Solution Focused Conversations

Focus on possible solutions, not the problem itself

Empowerment Model

 Miracle Question: “How can I/we help?”

What has worked for you in the past when you were feeling afraid and uncertain?
Leader: Hello, Mary. How are you today?

Member: Not good. I've been depressed lately. My MS is acting up and I'm feeling tired all the time. My husband and daughter just don't get it.

Leader: That sounds awful. I can understand why you have been feeling depressed.

Member: Yeah. It has been so bad that I really haven't been able to go to work. I stayed home three days last week and haven't been able to do much around the house. My family should know that I'm exhausted. My daughter told me that I look fine. I think she thinks I'm lazy.

Leader: Those must have been some very depressing days—missing work and feeling that your family doesn't understand.

Member: I spent most of the day in bed or on the sofa. It was really too much for me to deal with.

The conversation is focused on the problem. You can almost feel the group member getting more and more depressed as she is reminded of her difficult week.
Leader: Hello, Mary. How are you today?

Member: Not good. I've been depressed lately. My MS is acting up and I'm feeling so tired. My husband and teenage daughter just don't get it.

Leader: That sounds very frustrating. Have there been days that you've felt less depressed than others?

Member: A few. I was able to keep focused and get some work done from home. I also read a book with my daughter and helped with her homework — which we enjoyed.

Leader: What do you think made those days better?

Member: I'm not really sure. To be honest, I think it was my attitude toward the day. I was just as tired, but I was determined not to let it ruin the day. I also told my family in the morning that it was a high fatigue day, and that seemed to help. They said they were glad that I told them.

Our leader has acknowledged our group members feelings, but then moved her focus to the days that didn’t feel as difficult. That subtle change in conversation helped her to see what she could do differently (solutions) to manage her distress.

  - Resources for Meeting in Person

Like the rest of the world, the National MS Society is navigating how best to ramp back up and move through our transition to normalcy. These resources are intended for self-help groups who want to meet in person. By implementing guidelines consistently across the country, we hope to advance Society priorities, increase connection opportunities, and bring groups back together safely.

For questions about bringing your group together in-person or any of the resources listed below, please reach out to your staff partner or peerconnections@mss.org.

Rehabilitation: Mobility Intervention Strategies
Friday, Sept. 17 | 1:00 PM EDT – 2:00 PM EDT

The goal of rehabilitation is to improve and maintain your function - an essential component of comprehensive MS care. From the time of diagnosis onward, rehabilitation specialists provide education and strategies designed to promote your health and wellness, reduce fatigue, and help you function optimally. Join us as talk with Herb Karpatkin, Associate Professor of the Physical Therapy program at Hunter College, City University of New York, and Cinda Hugo, Associate Professor and MS Researcher at VA Portland Health Care System and Oregon Health & Science University, about mobility intervention strategies for those with minimal and advanced walking or gait difficulties.
